If you would like to use the design templates used in this tutorial, simply look in the resource section below the video for links to the bubble pages which you can copy into your own application.

Resources

Homepage template: Use the homepage template from this tutorial – click here (right click page in the elements tree and select "copy to another app". Then paste within your own bubble account.)

App internal page template: Use the app template from this tutorial – click here (right click page in the elements tree and select "copy to another app". Then paste within your own bubble account.)

After completing this step you may get a few app error issues. That's simply because you'll need to either have created the "data type" (with the exact same name, spelling and capitalization) within your own database, or you'll need to copy the database type over from our app to yours.

To copy our database structure, go back to our template and click on the "database" icon in the left sidebar. Then with the "data type" tab selected, find the "Sample Thing" data type and then hover over it and right click. Then click on "copy". Now, back in your own app, go to your database by clicking on the database tab. Again, with the "data type" tab selected right click on any data type you have in your database and then right click. Next, click on "paste" and the "Sample Thing" data type will be added to your application as well!

That's it!
